ABOUT ME

A curious individual wanting to make the best of the opportunities that come along, you will find me calling myself a creative by choice. I enjoy crafting and narrating stories - whether it is in the form of literature, music, film, or photography. There is a special kind of joy in being able to create an entire experience for someone that can be enjoyed collectively but is unique to each. It is my goal, to be able to tell those kinds of stories and craft experiences that can be cherished for a lifetime.

I'm built with a little bit of everything and always ready to build myself some more. I am a quick learner, good listener and can easily adapt to new situations. Given my science background, I tend to bring the structure in the chaos and unpredictability of creativity. My leadership experiences, beginning from my school days, hold me in good stead while guiding and helping teams become the best versions of themselves. As an ambivert, I enjoy myself in social settings and groups but working alone on a project doesn't seem deadly either. Needless to say, I'm a hard worker, always giving my best at whatever I commit to.
